Department of Economics
University of Toronto
JOB POSTING – POSTDOCTORAL FELLOW

Area of Research: Experimental-Behavioral Economics

Description of duties: The Department of Economics at the University of Toronto is offering a postdoctoral position in Experimental-Behavioral Economics. Appointment will be for two years, renewable for a third year conditional on satisfactory performance. The Toronto Experimental Economics Lab was established in 2017 to allow researchers affiliated with the department to conduct controlled experimental studies. The successful candidate will be supervised by Professor Yoram Halevy and is expected to manage and develop the lab and to teach two sections (1.0 FCE) of an undergraduate course (48 hours of instructions total) in the department.

Salary: 70,000 – 80,000 CAD per year

Please note that should the minimum rates stipulated in the collective agreement fall below the rates stated in this posting, the minimum rates stated in the collective agreement shall prevail.

Required qualifications: A PhD prior to beginning the position is required. Applicants should have strong interest in experimental economics and good knowledge in economic theory. The successful applicant will have an opportunity to collaborate with faculty and students at the University of Toronto as well as to develop their own research agenda.
