ECONOMICS 321Y1Y: Canadian Economic History Winter, 2013

This course will survey literature on Canadian economic history between 1850 and 1960 with a focus on the debate over the ability of the market mechanism to optimize economic development. Kenneth Norrie, D. Owram, and J.C. Emery's A History of the Canadian Economy (Thomson Nelson, 2002) or Richard Pomfret's The Economic Development of Canada (Nelson Canada, 1993) are useful texts but you may wish to refer to Easterbrook and Aitken or the articles suggested for each lecture.

Starting with our second meeting (January 17), our class time will consist of a seminar during the first hour (10:10-11:00PM) and a lecture during the second and third hours (11:10-1:00PM). I will provide photocopies of my lectures and of some articles at cost. The seminars will entail discussions of the previous lecture led by students who will have each read one of the articles listed below on the topic.

There will be one exam: a three hour final, worth 25% of the total mark, in the final examination period. The exam covers only the material in the lecture notes. Each student must also write a 15 page essay (12 point type, double spaced, normal margins) critically examining all the articles and books on a topic chosen from a list that I will provide. The paper is due March 21 and is worth 15% of the total mark. Students are encouraged to look up additional sources to expand their research but you need not do so. The essay must be handed to me during my office hours or class time. The penalty for lateness is 5% for the first week (March 28) and 15% for the second week (April 4). Essays that are a week or more late will not be eligible for remarking. All students must hand in two copies of the essay and be prepared to submit to Turnitin if asked.

A Presentation comprises 4% of the total mark and seminar Participation accounts for the remaining 6% of the grade. The 1 page presentation (12 point, double-spaced, normal margins given to me before the presentation) on designated pages from an assigned author determines the value of the presentation mark and also gives the right to get one participation mark for a comment or question per seminar up to a maximum of 6 marks for six seminars. Students will sign up for their presentation day during the first class. If you miss your presentation, you must provide documentation of a legitimate reason, submit your original presentation, and do a replacement presentation that I will assign.
