COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course will first focus on the development of a theoretical framework for the analysis of the nature, effects and policy implications of international finance; balance-of-payments and foreign exchange analysis. Then, the theoretical framework will be extended to examine liquidity problems and topics related to current problems in international finance.

REQUIRED TEXTBOOK:

International Economics: Theory and Policy (Eleventh Edition), Krugman, P.R., Obstfeld, M., and Melitz, M., only buy from UT Bookstore to make sure you get the book specified for this course (it is in back order). Also, “MyLab Economics” access that comes with the textbook package.

PREREQUISITES & EXCLUSIONS:

Prerequisites: ECO202Y1/ECO208Y1/ECO209Y1

Prerequisites are strictly checked and enforced and must be completed before taking a course. By taking this course you acknowledge that you will be removed from the course at any time if you do not meet all requirements set by the Department of Economics. For further information you can consult the Undergraduate Academic Handbook.

Exclusion: ECO230Y1

COURSE ASSESSMENT:

Mid-term Date: May 29.

Mid-term 45%, final examination 55% (If the mid-term is better than the final examination).

Mid-term 30%, final examination 70% (If the final examination is better than the mid-term).

The variable weights for the mid-term and the final examination are designed to encourage students to work harder on their final examination in case their mid-term is not satisfactory. The final examination will be held during the final examination period in June and will be cumulative.

Re-reads of the mid-term will be granted if the test is written in pen and returned to me within one week of the date of its return to the class. In addition to this, you must include in writing and with specificity, your question or concern with the grading. Please be advised that the marker may re-read and re-mark the entire test. Any additional errors will, of course, be corrected on the spot.

POLICY ON MISSED TEST:

Students who miss the Mid-term will be assigned a mark of zero unless they satisfy the following conditions: Students who miss the Mid-term for reasons entirely beyond their control may, within one week of the Mid-term, submit to the instructor a written request in person for special consideration explaining the reason for missing the Mid-term, and attaching properly completed documentation (for example: Verification of Student Illness or Injury, which can be downloaded at <http://www.illnessverification.utoronto.ca/index.php>), then a makeup Mid-term will be scheduled.

COMMUNICATIONS:

All course materials and announcements will be posted on Quercus. You need to check for updates on a regular basis, especially the day before each class.

I prefer receiving email and I will only respond to email sent through UTOR account for record-keeping and identification purposes. I usually reply to email within 24 hours during working weekdays. Please put "ECO365" in the message title as this will help draw my attention to your email. I will only respond to email with questions that can be answered in a sentence or two. For any detailed question that involves equation or diagram, or regarding the results of graded material, then you should see me in class. There are limits to how much time I can spend answering email, so please do not abuse this privilege. In addition, I will not respond to questions already covered in the syllabus or other announcements, or to any email sent within 24 hours of your test or final examination. Email should not be seen as a means to receive private tutorials or review material that was covered in class but you missed.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT:

Students should note that copying, plagiarizing, or other forms of academic misconduct will not be tolerated. Any student caught engaging in such activities will be subject to academic discipline ranging from a mark of zero on the test or examination to dismissal from the university as outlined in the Undergraduate Academic Handbook. Any student abetting or otherwise assisting in such misconduct will also be subject to academic penalties.
