L5101	Mondays 5:00 - 7:00PM

Course Description:

This course advances the microeconomic concepts introduced in an introductory microeconomics course to an intermediate level. It explores the core theories of individual decision-making within the framework of consumer theory and theory of firm production and cost. Then the course examines markets behavior, and outcomes of functioning markets under various structures, focusing on equilibrium, efficiency, and economic welfare, while also considering the effects of changes, shocks, and policy interventions. At the end, more advanced topics will be addressed.

Prerequisites:

The course prerequisites are strictly checked and enforced. You will be removed from the course at any time, if you do not meet all the requirements set by the Department of Economics. For further information, you can consult the Academic Calendar, here.

Missing Term Tests:

- If for any emergency circumstances, acceptable by the university rules you miss a term test, you should declare your absence on ACORN right away.
- The weight of the missed test will be added to the final exam. There will not be any makeup test, with no exceptions.
- If you miss more than one term test, one will be replaced by the final exam, and the rest will receive ZERO marks under ANY circumstances.

Re-grading Appeals:

In order to appeal for re-grading your term tests, you should submit the Re-grading Request Form (ask by email for the form), by email, within 2 weeks after returning the grades. After this period, no request is accepted. Your test may be re-graded entirely, so your grade can go either way, up or down, or remain unchanged.

Writing Assignments:

The point of the writing assignments is to give you the opportunity to apply your newly gained knowledge of economics in a 'real-life' setting and practice your writing and reporting skills.

- The details of the paper will be posted on Quercus later. It is in form of a short essay.
- No collaboration is allowed, as each student needs to work and submit a separate paper.
- No extension is granted. A penalty of 25% (of the assessment mark) per day will be applied to the late submissions. No submissions will be accepted four calendar days after the deadline. Any fraction of a day, even one minute or one hour is considered a whole day.
- A missing term paper cannot be substituted by anything else.

Quizzes:

- There will be several quizzes posted on the publisher's Achieve website. Each quiz covers one or a few chapters, including multiple-choice questions or fill-in value questions.
- An upcoming quiz will be announced in advance. When the quiz is posted, you have a window of a day or two to start the quiz. When you start the quiz, you need to finish it in one sitting in a limited time around one hour and half (maybe more or less depending on the size and coverage of the quiz).
- Please make sure you do not miss the quizzes, by regularly checking Quercus. If you miss a quiz, its weight goes to the final exam. If you miss more than one quiz, the weight of one will go to the final exam, and others will receive marks of zero.

Course Notes, Emails, and Quercus Website:

- Quercus: All the course materials like exercises, quizzes, notes, announcements, ... will be posted on the Quercus course website. It is your responsibility to follow up and get the information about the tests, quizzes, announcements, ...
- Course Notes: For your convenience, I will also post course notes on the website in pdf format. But the notes are NOT complete, and the complete version is NOT available, under ANY circumstances. Of course, you can complete the notes by attending the lectures. If you must miss a lecture, you need to make sure to have arrangements with your classmates to acquire the information or ask me to take pictures of the notes from my computer screen during the office hours or after classes.
- Emails: If you want to send an email, you must send it from your UofT account to masoud.anjomshoa@utoronto.ca. It is preferable NOT to send messages through

Other Notes:

- In this course, the textbook is followed closely, but supplementary examples, graphs, articles, videos, and materials might be discussed or posted. Students are responsible for all the course materials for the tests and exam.
- There might be some marginal grade adjustments for the final grade of the course at the instructor's discretion, in terms of letter grade. In case of petition for re-grading of the final exam, the adjustment may be revised for the final mark of the course.

Academic Integrity and Academic Misconduct:

- Students should note that any form of academic misconduct will not be tolerated, as academic integrity is central to an UofT education. Any student caught engaging in misconduct activities will be subject to academic discipline ranging from a mark of zero on a test or examination to dismissal from the university as outlined in the academic handbook. Any student abetting or otherwise assisting in such misconduct will also be subject to academic penalties.
- Academic integrity is especially relevant for online elements of the courses, like quizzes. Consider all graded term work as individual work. Collaborating, providing, or receiving answers or unauthorized help from someone else on submitted work violates academic integrity.
- Please note that all suspected cases will be reported to the Department of Economics and OSAI. Please consult with the university's Code of Behavior on Academic Matters: <http://www.governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/policies/behaveac.htm>

- In order to avoid plagiarism, your assignments might be submitted to Turnitin. You can find the details about what plagiarism is and how to avoid it, check this link: <http://advice.writing.utoronto.ca/using-sources>
- The usual University of Toronto disclaimer on use of Turnitin is applied: "Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to the University's plagiarism detection tool for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the tool's reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University's use of this tool are described on the Centre for Teaching Support & Innovation web site (<https://uoft.me/pdt-faq>)".
- The knowing use of generative artificial intelligence tools, including ChatGPT and other AI writing and coding assistants, for the completion of, or to support the completion of, an examination, term test, assignment, or any other form of academic assessment, may be considered an academic offense in this course.
- Representing as one's own an idea, or expression of an idea, that was AI-generated may be considered an academic offense in this course.
- This course policy is designed to promote your learning and intellectual development and to help you reach course learning outcomes.

- Notice of Video Recording and Sharing: Course materials belong to your instructor, the University, and/or other sources depending on the specific facts of each situation and are protected by copyright. Do not download, copy, make videos, or share any course or student materials or videos without the explicit permission of the instructor.

Using Crowdmark Platform as the Grading Tool:

This course will use Crowdmark, a collaborative online grading tool for marking and providing feedback on graded term assessments. Crowdmark provides efficiencies with grading, data recording, returning term assessments and handling regrade requests. Copies of student work marked in Crowdmark, including grading and feedback, will be available online to students for at least one year. Digital (i.e., online) copies will serve as the authoritative record for course administrative purposes, and paper copies of assessments scanned and uploaded to Crowdmark will be destroyed after the term has ended and final grades are approved. If you have questions about how your information is stored on Crowdmark, please contact your course instructor.
